Redeemer Renaissance After-School Program

Friday, October 23, 2009

Week In Review

On Monday, we continued our "Candy Corn Olympics." The children played another relay with candy pumpkins.

On Tuesday they tested their skill at dropping candy corn into a small container, the final candy corn competition.

On Wednesday and Thursday we took the opportunity to enjoy the wonderful weather.

On Thursday, children also made paper snakes and were visited by James Pettinelli and his reptile friends. Mr. Pettinelli is president of the Wildlife Rescue League.

On Friday, Brian Curry brought his magic to Redeemer Renaissance. Some children also chose to make paper plate scarecrows.

The Peace Mug is Back

Last year, the children of Redeemer Renaissance painted fabric squares which were pieced together to make segments for the Children's

Cloth of Many Colors, an initiative of the Communities of Peace. The fabric squares were photographed and reproduced on a mug. The mugs were sold and proceeds given to Operation Military Kids, a project which supports children impacted by the deployment of loved ones. We are making the mug available again this year in time for holiday giving. During the 40 Days of Peace beginning with the celebration of Dr. Martin Luther King's Birthday, proceeds will again be given to Operation Military Kids. Mugs are priced at $15 each, and can be ordered using the form below.
